- A map of Spain and surrounding regions showing territorial changes after the War of Succession (1701-1714). The map is color-coded to indicate which territories were retained by Philip V (green) and which were lost (red). The Atlantic Ocean is to the west, and the Mediterranean Sea is to the east.
- TERRITORIOS CONSERVADOS POR FELIPE V TRAS LA GUERRA DE SUCESIÓN (Conserved territories by Philip V after the War of Succession): Shown in green, covering most of the Iberian Peninsula, including the Kingdom of Spain, the Kingdom of Portugal, and parts of Italy (Sardinia and Sicily).
 - TERRITORIOS PERDIDOS POR FELIPE V TRAS LA GUERRA DE SUCESIÓN (Lost territories by Philip V after the War of Succession): Shown in red, including the Kingdom of Sicily, the Kingdom of Sardinia, the Duchy of Milan, the Duchy of Parma, the Duchy of Modena, the Duchy of Reggio, the County of Nice, and the County of Piemonte.
